

A photograph of an archaeological excavation site. The image shows a cross-section of a soil profile. At the top is a thin, light-colored layer. Below it is a thick, dark brown layer. At the bottom is a lighter, greyish layer. A red and white striped measuring pole is positioned vertically on the left side of the dark brown layer. A small black label with white text is placed on the dark brown layer. A horizontal red and white striped measuring pole is positioned to the right of the label.
